

Hungry for Horsley...

There are a number of slight changes to the spring menu at Horsley Lodge as we look forward to warm weather and al fresco dining. The biggest change at the Highlander Restaurant is that the no bookings policy has been dropped for Saturday nights. The management have listened to diners comments and feel it's the one night of the week when you prefer to know you will get a table. It's especially true if you are inviting friends to join you and don't want the stress of not knowing when or if you will get fed. As one diner commented:

"Hungry, anxious people are never a good start to an evening...
I'm glad Horsley Lodge has dropped the idea of no bookings"

So you now have the option of the relaxed informality of 1st come, 1st served in the week and now being able to savour Horsley's fine food by booking on a Saturday with 16 covers being allocated every half hour from 5.30 pm to 8.30pm. Bookings are being taken for tables on April 5th onwards.

The Highlander Restaurant, named after the Highland Cattle which graze outside the windows, has an extensive menu of freshly cooked quality food and with its stunning views over the golf course, perfect to relax and enjoy your meal. It is just a really nice place to eat: friendly smart young staff. The decor is all cool cream and brown with honey-hued wooden oak floors and elegant leather chairs.
