

Roland Boole (pictured) is a poet, artist and author from Kilburn. Roland is regularly contributing poems from his extensive collection. The following poem is about grief. It is always a difficult time when someone we know has lost someone they love. Roland's contribution offers words suitable for a letter or card of condolence. The poem is taken from his soon to be published book entitled "Words of Sympathy in Verse"

*It's been a while since we said hello
and I've just heard about your sadness.
I had to write and let you know
and send my sincere condolences.
I hope your dark days soon pass over
and brighter ones take their place.
If I can help to make your problems fewer
it might make life easier to face.*
